

Insurance Disclosure

Lifelong Balance does not participate with any insurance company directly, some if the providers are panned with insurance, and will work with your insurance company if applicable. However, it's important for you to know that medical insurance policies typically do not cover weight management care, and related expenses, including laboratory testing, ekgs, prescription medications, and related supplements.

An appropriate receipt of payment will be provided, including charges and descriptions of the office visit for different level of service provided. Insurance companies may reimburse patients for expenses related to weight management, for instance if co-morbid conditions are also a part of the weight management, but reimbursement will not be made from the insurance company to the physician.

Please understand that Lifelong Balance will not present a bill to any insurance company for weight management services of related charges. Psychological services are subject to the provider's discretion.

Although Lifelong Balance will provide a receipt, we are not obligated to complete any form that may be provided by a health insurance company.

Patient Statement Understanding:
